Excerpt: . . . 23 Expanded creditors responsibilities for furnishing accurate data. The FACT Act mandated that the federal banking agencies, National Credit Union Association (NCUA), and FTC issue joint regulations identifying the circumstances under which furnishers of information would be required to investigate the accuracy of information in a credit report 24 when asked to do so by a consumer; Established a regulatory scheme under which creditors were required to notify consumers when information from credit reports negatively affected the terms of credit, such as interest rates on credit cards and loans. The notification would also have to inform potential borrowers that they could obtain a copy of their credit report from the CRA, without charge; and Strengthened victims rights with respect to identity theft, made credit history restoration easier, limited the sharing and use of medical information within the financial system, required mortgage lenders to disclose credit scores to applicants, and required CRAs to offer credit scores to consumers for a reasonable fee. Finally, as we have noted, the FACT Act created FLEC to improve financial...
