Excerpt: . . . e Harris, an Ohio white supremacist, managed to order and receive samples of the bubonic plague through the mail. To prevent this from happening again in the future, I was an original co-sponsor of the Hatch-Feinstein Biological Agents Enhanced Penalties and Control Act, which ultimately passed as part of the 1996 terrorism bill. This bill: Added the attempt or threat to acquire dangerous biological agents for use as a weapon as crimes punishable by fines or imprisonment up to life imprisonment; Directed the Secretary of Health and Human Services to rapidly establish and maintain a list of biological agents which pose a severe threat to public health and safety; and Directed the Secretary of Health and Human Services to rapidly establish and enforce safety procedures for transfers of human pathogens, to ensure proper training and procedures for handling such agents, and to prevent unauthorized persons from obtaining the dangerous biologicals, while maintaining appropriate availability of these agents for research, education and other legitimate purposes. Later that year, HHS, through the Centers for Disease Control, published regulations implementing this Act. I look forward to discussing implementation of this law and these regulations with the witnesses today. To date, the United States has not experienced a biological or chemical weapons attack of significance by terrorists. In contrast, we have suffered hundreds of deaths due to terrorist attacks using conventional explosives. To help investigate, prosecute, and punish these despicable, evil and cowardly acts, I led the fight to give the Treasury Department the authority to require the use of taggants in explosive materials, which also passed as part of the 1996 terrorism law. The Treasury Department...
